Q: Awk filter: remove last digits of numbers, removing the entire number I have a shell script to filter out all filenames with extension numbers, but I only want to remove the final 4 digits that indicate the year of the file. If the 4th digit represents the year, I want to delete that entire year value. (e.g. 2016 -> 2015) I've tried using awk and sed so far but have been unable to come up with a solution. Using \: to specify "space" is not working (since I don't have spaces in my filename). A: Using awk: $ tail -1 test.txt | awk -F[':'] '{print $3,$2}' 2015,test $ tail -1 test.txt | awk -F[':'] '{print $3}' 2015 You cannot have the year in the filename, and it is already in the file format, you could remove it from the filename, and get rid of the file extension. If you really want to keep the extension, you could try: $ tail -1 test.txt | awk -F[':'] '{print $2,$3}' 2015,test $ tail -1 test.txt | awk -F[':'] '{print $2}' 2015 Only 1.5% of the world's forests are protected. This graph shows how that compares to total population. With almost two billion people living in forests, the natural assets that provide food, livelihoods and protection for an estimated 80% of the world's population, it is safe to say that forests do far more than just provide oxygen. A 2016 study from the Food and Agriculture Organization found that only 1.5% of the world's forests are protected, with only about 1.9% of them located in countries where forests are officially protected, like Indonesia, Malaysia, Colombia or Mexico. To give you an idea of how dismal this situation is, consider the following: According to the FAO, forest
