I've decided that the easiest way to achieve this is to create a Hyper-V cluster and use SQL Server replication to back up and restore the database (We're talking about a couple of databases, not a highly-scaled application). My first question is should I be using a Hyper-V cluster and replication? Or should I still be using the classic clustering and multi-master setup? My second question is if using a Hyper-V cluster and replication is the best way to handle database synchronization, then does a Hyper-V VM need to be in the same subnet as the SQL Server Server? A: The Microsoft engineering team has confirmed that it is not possible to use SQL Server replication to
