Note After creating a new page, the settings for the template should be set to the default, so make sure that is checked on the page settings tab. 9. **Choose File > Place to upload a file to your computer, and browse to locate the file you downloaded.** 10. **Change the name of the new file to something you will remember and highlight it in the task pane and then click the Place button.** You are now ready to continue through the rest of the tutorial. # Import an Image into Photoshop Before you start any image-editing technique, it's always smart to import a reference image into Photoshop so you're working with a known reference to avoid any mishaps in the editing process. 1. **Launch Photoshop**. If you're opening Photoshop for the first time, you'll see the Welcome to Photoshop screen. 2. **Choose File > Open (or press Ctrl+O)**. The Open dialog box appears, as shown on Opening an Image. 3. **Navigate to the image you downloaded from the Internet and select it**. It's a good idea to save a copy of that image and always keep it handy in case you need it for reference later. When you select an image, the Open dialog box opens. You can also navigate to the image on your computer's hard drive. 4. **Click Open**. Your new image opens in a full-screen image window, ready for you to begin editing. In this tutorial, you'll look at some of Photoshop's most basic features, such as layers and selections, but you will also work with drawing tools, like the Pen tool, and the blend modes. ## Layer Basics Layer masks are useful for correcting and hiding image areas, so you need to understand the concept of layers and how to create them. 1. **Using the Rectangular Marquee tool (M), drag around the top left of the image**. You should now have a dark rectangle over the top of the image. Drag to create as many rectangles as you like and then release the mouse button. Each rectangle is called a

In this article, we will take a look at some of the ways to speed up Adobe Photoshop Elements to edit, create, crop, and even vectorize images. Although Photoshop Elements is a relatively new product, the learning curve is a relatively small one, so you can learn to use it fast. The goal of this tutorial is not just to show how to make Photoshop work faster, but also to introduce you to a few editing techniques, like Smart Brush, Brush Tip Blending, and Gradient Map, to help you achieve good results. How to Speed up Photoshop Elements The following are a list of things you can do to speed up Photoshop Elements. 1. Remove additional process steps There are a lot of additional process steps, like ordering layers, that you will do as part of editing. Adobe Photoshop Elements, like Photoshop, contains presets for many different tasks, or a variety of different editing functions. These presets are usually "right-click" dialog options, or they are available for each layer. However, you do not need to use all of them. You can remove layers that you don't need to use, or you can just hide the layers that are not relevant to your current projects. It is much faster to hide layers that you do not want to see when you work on a project. Similarly, if you do not need an image that has already been saved, then it is a waste of time to load and process it in Photoshop Elements. Alternatively, you can remove layers after you are done editing to save time. To do this, hold Control+Option and click on the layer you want to remove. 2. Reuse an image more efficiently Reusing images can save time, especially for people who collect a lot of images, like photographers. If you create an image, you can use it again if you need to, but save it to a different folder. In Photoshop Elements, if you click on the image and set it to "download to folder," it will automatically create a copy of the image in a specific folder. However, you can also manually add images that have already been downloaded to a specific folder. Another way to speed up your workflow is to have your computer scan documents and images. It can save you from wasting time redownloading them from the Web and saving them in a separate folder. 3. Save files before going on to the next step

Speaking to CNN's "State of the Union," Manchin said that he told Trump that he would not support the administration's position to move the U.S. Embassy in Israel to Jerusalem if the money for the effort was not matched in Congress. "I told the president, I said, 'Mr. President, you can put Jerusalem in that bill, but you cannot walk away from the other part of your promise and not match the money, or I'm going home,'" Manchin said. ADVERTISEMENT He added that he came to the White House a year ago and "I said I'm gonna be your friend, I'm going to support you, and you support me." He added that he would support the president in "earning everything you've earned." Manchin's comments come after Trump said Sunday that he thought West Virginia Sen. Joe Manchin would support Trump's plans to roll back gun laws. "I think you'd have a couple Republicans that would vote with us," Trump said of gun control legislation on "Fox News Sunday." Manchin has been one of the most vocal Democrats in the Senate to support stricter gun laws. He is facing a tough reelection fight in 2018, and has distanced himself from progressive Democrats who are embracing extreme positions. Last week, he tweeted that he thought Vice President Pence was "doing an excellent job." "Thanks for the kind words, @VP. Others want to act, this is why I'm so grateful you and Mike are here to
