When your web browser opens your web pages, it sends a request for them to our server. The request includes some information about your web browser, including the name of your browser and the operating system you are using. The server then allocates an IP address for your browser, which it sends back to your browser when it receives a request. The server may put some additional information in the response. The web browser then uses that IP address to connect to the server and request a page. Please consider all of these things carefully before you distribute your crack to others. If you want to redistribute, you must remove copyright notices in your crack. We also recommend that you add a note to your distribution telling the recipient where to get the original files. You must not make any changes to our website or files without our permission. You can contact us at support.substance.com.
