Charizard will always be the main Dragon type even after the release of Dragon Radar. It's the most powerful flying type in the game, with Super Effective attacks that can even 1-hit kill most of the common pokemon. When used correctly, Charizard can be unstoppable. But seeing as Charizard's stats are not the best, it's always a bit of a gamble to use it since there are often better alternatives available. Tynamo has a super-effective powerful Super Effective attack and, even with the mid-set update, is the third strongest Dragon Trainer in the game. His team, however, is the worst of the bunch. His movepool is extremely limited and he has no resistances, meaning all his Pokemon are susceptible to every single physical attack out there. Pokemon fans are never ones to shy away from a challenge, especially when it comes to battling other trainers. Clair, Lance and Leon are all incredible trainers, and the Pokemon they are known for have the potential to be some of the strongest in the game. But they all have one thing in common: they all take large teams. The five strongest dragons, while not necessarily some of the best individual Pokemon, still represent some of the strongest Pokemon in the game. And what do the first three trainers have in common? All three of them, in their early career, take teams consisting of three of the best dragons in the game. That's also why we keep saying these first three trainers are incredible, in that they not only take on other trainers but take on multiple dragons at the same time, making them some of the most powerful trainers ever.
