PDF.....Eighty-five HIV-infected hemophiliacs in a multiethnic population. Of the 335 hemophiliacs receiving AIDS care at the Bronx/Manhattan Hemophilia Center between 1987 and 1990, 85 of them were HIV-positive, 50 (59%) of whom were Hispanic and 25 (30%) were African-American. Compared with hemophiliacs not infected with HIV, HIV-infected hemophiliacs were more likely to have a history of intravenous drug abuse and to have had hepatitis C virus (HCV) antibody. African-Americans were younger than Hispanics and whites. The median survival for Hispanics was 3.3 years and for whites and African-Americans was 7.0 years. Survival for Hispanic hemophiliacs was longer than that of non-Hispanic hemophiliacs, and for white hemophiliacs it was longer than that of African-Americans. For all three groups of hemophiliacs, survival was longer for patients receiving treatment for AIDS (mean survival 4.7 years) than for those who were symptomatic but not receiving treatment (mean survival 3.5 years). * * For the full copyright and license information, please view the LICENSE * file that was distributed with this source code. */ namespace Symfony\Component\HttpKernel\Exception; / * Class MethodNotAllowedHttpException. * * @author Fabien Potencier */ class MethodNotAllowedHttpException extends HttpException { / * @param string $message The internal exception message * @param \Exception $previous The previous exception * @param int $code The internal exception code */ public function
